

SENIOR PRODUCT MANAGER – MOTORCYCLES

“We are creating the next big thing on two wheels. What more does a rider want?”
Reno, Director - Product Strategy

Make an impact on the motorcycle universe. You aren't just a rider – you're an insider with endless knowledge about anything on two wheels. Working closely with KISKA's multi-disciplinary team, you will consult clients on a range of topics relating to their products and portfolios.

In this aspirational position, you will:

- › Support international powersports brands as they set up future product portfolios.
- › Collaborate with researchers to identify trends. Work with marketing specialists. Create business cases for new model development, and shape strategic decisions.
- › Lead client workshops. Pinpoint business, market and brand insights.

It's the law in Austria to state MINIMUM annual salaries. In this case, it's €45,000. Don't take that number too seriously though, because salaries are always customised to market rates and merit. KISKA is also an equal opportunity employer. It's a no-brainer, but important to mention.

- › Analyse and process data into reasoned product recommendations. Present these to the client.
- › Work closely with client management teams to put recommendations into action.

To keep riders happy – today and tomorrow - you need:

- › Education and / or proven experience in marketing, business, product management or project management.
- › A motorcycle license. You are an avid rider.
- › Understanding of design development process. Also the technical aspects of vehicles and their design.
- › Very good English skills. German is also an asset.
